The Enchantingly Picturesque Ridgewood.

Ridgewood avenue is upon the crest of a broad ridge, straight as the crow flies, and the wide-spreading branches of the avy-trunked live-oaks extend their arms across this magnificent vista, forming an arch, and from these extended arms great festoons of Spanish moss hang as the trade winds from tropic seas in them. Looking straight ahead down the white shell street one has the impression of a fairy path with elfish darts

...miles narrow every corner of the country and they bring their own architectural plans and build upon them, and the architecture of one section of the country differs from the architecture of another so do our homes differ in outward appearance and structural beauty from one another. There are no monotonous rows of strikingly similar buildings to the eye, as it seems by, is treated like a kaleidoscopic change which keeps the mind wondering "What next?"

Streets and Pavements the Most and Best.

Why the Architect of the Universe chose to give to Daytona the most admirable, the most picturesque natural setting of all the cities of the South is not revealed but that such is a fact, must be apparent to the most superficial observer. With such lavish wealth of natural beauty it became an easy thing in the hand of man to give the little finishing touches which have brought to the colors and outlines of the big picture.

Man did all this in the laying out of the streets with their wide margins of parkage, the entire city becomes a great park

What the Duke Meant.

His grace the Duke of Argyll was addressing a select company in a London drawing room on the present findings in South Africa. "I look forward to the time," he said, "when the Englishman will marry the Boer girl and have an English wife as well as respectable dowagers looked upon as surprises, and the men began to smile." "I think the Duke carefully explained that he meant, of course, that the Boer girl should become an Englishwoman for all intents and purposes.—Reynolds's Newspaper.

Smart Set English.
The speech of the smart man and woman sufficiently betrays the modern attitude. To speak good English is to speak the language of the middle class. The modern vocabulary is very small, and the greater part of it is composed of slang.—Black and White.
